NAPA VALLEY, Calif. — More than 100 special events are going on in the Napa Valley over the next few days. And there are plenty of places where you can access information on each of them, such as Visit Napa Valley, the various town-specific sites and their chambers of commerce. Of course you can always also become a member of Paul Franson's go-to NapaLife, which has tons of info and was recently acquired by Highway 29 Publishing, although Franson is still actively involved. But Napa Valley Features' "The Napa Valley Weekender" intends to be something different.

Every Friday morning we provide a selection of activities and experiences around the region that has been curated by the Napa Valley Features' team. Our goal is to provide at least a few free or low-cost events and to cover every town in our valley. This is an eclectic list, ranging from theatrical readings to musical concerts, from wine celebrations to art gallery tours, from charitable walks to astronomical marvels. Our goal is for both locals and visitors to find this list valuable, engaging and complete with sufficient details to eliminate the need for extensive searches for times, locations or any associated costs.

Bubbles and Barks Pop-Up: This charitable pop-up event supports three local animal-welfare organizations: Compassion Without Borders, Jameson Humane and Napa Humane. You can treat your pets to a day of luxury, swag and treats while enjoying the effervescent flavors of Paula Kornell Sparkling Brut. The event will be held at the Kitchen Door, 1300 First St., Suite 272, Napa, from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 5.
